How it works

WebDISC 2.0

Manufacturer

- Produces goods
- Needs visibility of demand
- Buffer Inventory is critical
- Control Distribution, Prices

Distributor

- Buys in bulk (mostly from same Manufacturer)
- Sells in small quantities
- Needs visibility of demand
- Needs goods when requested

Consumer

- Has access to multiple products/brands
- Makes decision on product availability, price, etc

Retailer

- Buys small quantities of goods
- Has access to multiple brands
- Various types of consumers

Manufacturer has ERP which is accessible only up to their marketing division. No single window between Distributor and Manufacturer – hence no visibility of inventory levels of products at Distributor warehouse for Manufacturer.

DISC connects the two systems.

DISC & its benefits

WebDISC 2.0

Manufacturer

Better visibility of stock positions at different distributor locations

Distributor upload of invoices and returns is integrated into their own ERP System

Sales Manager

Reporting Needs are customized and generated timely

Provides a better snapshot of stock positions at different distributor locations

Distributor

Simple web based application to report their invoices, returns and receivables

Additional cash flow realization by better accounts receivables monitoring

Distributor

Enters the invoice details for the stock items sold for the day in Amazech's DISC

WebDiSC
Distribution Channel Management System

Integrates this data to the Manufacturer's ERP System

Manufacturer

Gets the visibility of stock position of each item at each Distributor location and accordingly make decisions to replenish
